

The Girls & Boys Projects Train-the-Trainer

SCHEDULE YOUR TRAINING FOR 2012

"Our teachers love this program. They learn how to start where the students are, and provide the social and emotional skills young people need to tackle challenges they face: violence, stereotypes, peer pressure, body image, etc."
– Teacher, East Side Community HS

"Thanks to the Girls & Boys Projects, our students seem to be able to talk about so many issues in constructive ways. In Public Girl & Public Boy they put their ideas into action. It feels like the culture is shifting before our eyes!"
– Adam Weinstock, Director of Advisory, Tompkins Square Middle School

"The Girls & Boys Projects is just as important as any academic class we could offer our students!"
– Thomas Staebell, PS 15

Who We Are:

For the past 12 years, The Girls & Boys Projects have brought gender-based empowerment programs to over 7,500 elementary, middle and high school students throughout NYC. Our focus is on themes such as: stopping stereotypes, analyzing media messages, preventing teasing and bullying, exploring puberty/sexuality and health, developing positive and healthy relationships, and engaging in civic activism. The primary attraction of our programs for many schools and community-based organizations (CBOs) is that we provide crucial social and emotional skills (SEL) to young people.

Our Training:

Whether you are interested in implementing our entire curriculum (25-week modules) or if you want to infuse your existing programs with fresh ideas, our training is an opportunity for educators (and staff) to learn about the following:

- Themes on gender and other social issues in The Girls & Boys Projects curriculum;
- Collaborative/democratic education methods;
- The role of advocacy in the school community;
- The nuances of running a gender-based program;
- Hands-on experience with our methodology and curriculum.

Bring Us To You:

Our trainers will come to your school or organization to train your staff/teachers to implement The Girls & Boys Projects curricula. We conduct 1/2 day workshops at your convenience — after school, during designated PD (professional development) days.

How Much:

The Girls & Boys Projects are NYCDOE approved with vendor ID and contract numbers. Please contact us for pricing information. Our trainings range from $250 to $500 per person.
